

Uclick Launches New Interactive Lottery and Horoscope Data with Gaming Solutions International

September 29, 2006 -- uclick is pleased to announce a distribution agreement that will make Gaming Solutions International's interactive lottery and horoscope data modules available to online newspaper clients around the world.

Gaming Solutions International's data modules are designed to allow users the highest level of interaction and ease of use. The lottery module will provide comprehensive data, with available services including information on current and past jackpots, drawing results, tips and strategies for playing the lottery, odds calculators and lottery news. The horoscope module is also extensive, offering daily horoscopes and forecasts, daily star charts, Chinese Zodiac forecasts and compatibility lists.

"Uclick is one of the world's leading suppliers of interactive content to the newspaper community and we are excited to be working with them," said John Brier, Managing Partner of Gaming Solutions International, LLC. "Our turn-key customized interactive lottery and horoscope data modules are perfect for online newspapers in the United States, Canada, Ireland and the UK, and we look forward to working with uclick to deliver this best-of-breed product to uclick's worldwide client base."

The data modules are available in multiple languages and can be customized to fit the needs of international customers. Chris Pizey, CEO of uclick, believes that the all-inclusive design of the data modules makes them a perfect fit for online newspapers all across the globe.

"These highly interactive lottery and horoscope products are the kind of innovative and dynamic content that thrives on our clients' sites, both here in the United States and abroad" said Pizey. "We're thrilled to offer Gaming Solutions International's data platforms to online newspapers worldwide, and we anticipate that users everywhere will enjoy them as well."
